DUKE ELLINGTON SACRED CONCERT

with chorus, jazz orchestra,
vocal and instrumental soloists,
and dancers

Duke Ellington composed a series of Sacred Concerts performed in major churches all over the US. The concerts were improvisatory in nature and no complete score of it exists.

Two composers, Peder Pedersen and John Hoybye, recreated a scored version which will be performed here on April 14, 2019.

An expanded choir of 60 singers will be joined by a professional "Big Band" of 17 instrumentalists and vocal soloists under

No admission – a free-will offering to support music scholarships for Nassau County high school music students will be taken. This performance takes place as a Worship Service.

TOUCHSTONES

The Rev. Jennifer L. Brower

Many years ago, while on vacation and overcome by the beauty of the lush plant life where Rich and I were staying, I purchased a new plant for our home—a variegated peperomia, or so the little plastic sign in the soil told me. The shopkeeper at the nursery where I purchased it said, "it prefers less water." And I thought, "Oh yeah, I can manage to NOT water a plant. Caring for this plant is going to be easy!" But it wasn't nearly as easy as I'd imagined.

No matter what I did over the years that that plant and I lived together—giving it lots of light, giving it less light, watering regularly, watering irregularly, feeding it "miracle grow" or just tap water—that darn plant always looked near death's door. So much so that I began to regard it as a constant reminder of the things in life over which I have no control.

One day, I propped up some of its tendrils with toothpicks to improve its appearance—if not its health—and to ease my sense that I had a brown thumb instead of a green one. Not long after, Rich and I went away on a vacation.

I returned to find a glorious happening in my variegated peperomia's pot: new shoots were growing out of the soil! (My in-laws apparently had the key to this plant's health) and so I began a regular routine of watching its growth, watering it more carefully, and turning it each day so it would receive more even sunlight.

Then I noticed that instead of having sort of spade-shaped leaves, the leaves on this new growth were clover-shaped...there was a weed growing in my house plant.

I was heartbroken. The clover-leaved thing grew like wildfire too! Everyday I stared at its growth trying to decide what to do. Here was this plant that I had been trying, desperately, to help thrive and which I had barely kept alive. Now there was something growing fast and furiously...but it wasn't what I wanted. Finally, I had to laugh at the irony of this plant's life-lessons; that often we

The Rev. Ned Wight

Rev. Ned concludes his six-part series on the sources of our UU faith with a focus on “spiritual teachings of Earth-centered traditions which celebrate the sacred circle of life and instruct us to live in harmony with the rhythms of nature.” This source was added to the original list of five sources in the 1990s.

MESSAGES FROM THE MINISTERS

It’s good to know where you are on life’s path...

The Office of the Ministry is seeking two volunteers to help map the bricks in the paths through the Remembrance Garden. We want to be sure that each brick can be easily located. This project will take place during the late spring. Please contact Kimberly Rossiter, krossiter@uucsr.org or 516.472.2941 if you are interested.

get results we didn’t count on, and in so many ways—great and small—we are forced to make decisions.

Choices abound. Each day we have opportunities to make decisions about who we will be and how we will travel in this world and which steps we will take. In this case, I was faced with the dilemma of whether to allow the clover leafed thing to grow like a weed, so to speak, or yank it out.

As we move into spring—and as we move toward another stage in our congregational life—it feels appropriate to reflect upon the choices before us. How we will move forward into this fresh season of new life. What will we plant? What will we allow to grow? And what needs to be cleared away to allow for new life to take root and blossom?

Whatever you choose to “plant,” may you find your life growing into your highest aspirations and grandest visions...and may the weeds in your soil be few.

Yours In Faith,
Rev. Jennifer

Duke Ellington's Sacred Concert

April 14, 11:00 AM

At the age of 66 and at the height of his career, Duke Ellington composed a series of concerts planned in major churches all over the US. He was inspired by the fact that his dear friend and collaborator, Billy Strayhorn, was very ill. We don't find religious or spiritual references in Ellington's earlier works, but Strayhorn's illness shook Ellington deeply. Strayhorn died soon after the premier of the first Sacred Concert, and over the next several years Ellington toured his three Sacred Concerts. The first was premiered at Grace Cathedral in San Francisco (1965), the second at The Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine in New York (1968), and the third at Westminster Abbey in London (1973). Improvisatory in nature, and adapted to the resources available at each location, no complete score of the three Sacred Concerts exists because each performance varied greatly one from the other. In 1993, as a result of an international conference based solely on the Sacred Concerts, two composers, Peder Pedersen and John Hoybye, created a scored version recreating selections from each of the three Sacred Concerts. It is this version which will be our featured Music Sunday work this year.

The UU Congregation's expanded choir of approximately 60 singers will be joined by a "Big Band" of 17 players and vocal soloists Lilyan Strassman, Meagan Brus, Leah Wood, Joshua Sanders, and Brace Negrón.

This work is rarely heard and you are encouraged to invite your friends and family to this wonderful musical event. The service will run approximately one hour and twenty minutes due to the length of the piece.

Referring to the Sacred Concerts, Ellington characterized them as the most important thing I have ever done.

VEATCH NEWS

Marjona Jones, Senior Program Officer
Unitarian Universalist Veatch Program at Shelter Rock

On Friday, March 22, Saru Jayaraman, Co-Founder of Restaurant Opportunities Center (ROC) United, joined the Veatch Program Board of Governors and members of the congregation for their March Policy Retreat celebrating Women's History Month. ROC United was initially founded in New York City after September 11, 2001, to provide support to the more than 13,000 restaurant workers displaced as a result of the World Trade Center tragedy. ROC has grown into a national restaurant workers' organization with 32,000 worker members, and more than 700 employer partners who are organizing their peers to help transform the industry. ROC is one of the nation's leaders in the fight for a fair wage and a harassment-free workplace in the food-service industry.

In her presentation to us, Saru described the restaurant industry as rife with sexual harassment and exploitation. She compared the industry, that employs 14 million people in the US, as a training ground for how women expect to be treated in any job they obtain. Women workers make up the majority of the industry and rely on tips to make ends meet in an increasingly unjust economy. Women are encouraged to dress a certain way or put up with customers to make sure they get their tips. Saru believes that if we can transform this industry, it will be because of women's leadership. She highlighted how the #TimesUp movement has increased the visibility of harassment in the restaurant industry, among other labor sectors, and how ROC's engagement in its One Fair Wage! campaign could help address the issue of harassment of restaurant workers by eliminating workers' reliance on tips to make a living wage.

In addition to improving wages and benefits for restaurant workers, ROC United is educating restaurant workers as voters who have the potential to turn out to the polls to vote for state-based increases in the tipped wage. ROC believes restaurant workers can play a crucial role in securing our democracy in critical states. Saru updated us on efforts in New York, and left the group with several action steps:

1. Download the ROC Diner's Guide app to select establishments who pay their workers a fair wage and offer paid time off;
2. Refer workers to join ROC to become more aware of their rights;
3. Encourage your favorite restaurants to connect with ROC and become a high road employer;
4. Contact local government officials to encourage support to raise the minimum wage for tipped workers in NY State.

Saru noted that Veatch was one of ROC United's early funders and that our long-term support has made it possible for ROC to become a national force for building worker power. She thanked the congregation for its continued steadfast support.

The Unitarian Universalist Veatch Program at Shelter Rock provides support for efforts within the religious and spiritual mission of the Unitarian Universalist Congregation at Shelter Rock where their purposes are best served by outside agencies acting under the Veatch Program and the Congregation.

LIFESPAN RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Carson Jones, Lifespan Religious Education (RE) Coordinator

Perpetually in Bloom

Growing up in a multi-faith household, my very favorite time of year was the Passover and Easter season. Why do I have fonder memories of this Jewish and Christian holiday convergence over Hanukkah and Christmas, one may wonder? Perhaps I liked springtime more than wintertime. Or perhaps I just really liked chocolate eggs and Hillel sandwiches. (I really do!) Upon reflection, I feel that deep down I loved the connection between the two holidays the most; here is a much-debated question about whether the Last Supper was a Passover Seder, and both holidays are determined by solar and lunar calendars. As my knowledge of world theologies expanded, I found revived interest in Easter's possible origins in the pagan spring celebration of the goddess Ostara (or Eostre). Whatever the reason, Passover and Easter always feel like a fresh, new surprise, much like springtime itself.

Nowadays, my joy in these holidays lives in seeing my son searching for the afkomen at Seder, waking up early to hunt for eggs in our midtown Manhattan apartment, and that one time when the Easter Bunny visited us in our hotel room while vacationing in Toulouse, France. My joy also lives in sharing our faith observances together in beloved Unitarian Universalist community. I hope RE families will join us at the Passover Seder on Saturday, April 20, at 5:30 PM, and for the Easter Sunday Family Worship Service on April 21, at 11:00 AM, preceded by a Meet & Greet with the Easter Bunny and followed by our annual egg hunt for children. We look forward to warmly welcoming you all into this holy space of growing flowers, growing children, and growing souls.

Beloved Conversations, Part II

In December, I wrote about the anti-racism program, Beloved Conversations that was being held in UU congregations across Long Island. The eight-session program came to an end last week.

In the last few sessions of the program we examined what we were already doing to address racism and then we shared our dreams for being congregations rooted in racial justice.

Prominent among our “dreams” was the desire to be allies to communities of color. Many of us white people who are aware of and concerned about the effects of systemic racism on communities of color do want to be allies. Often, we just don’t know where or how to start.

During Beloved Conversations we were encouraged to invite people of color who lead communities of color to speak with us and tell us what it was like to have white people come to be allies and “to help.” We learned that when we white people show up, it must be with an attitude of humility and a willingness to listen and learn from the community.

I have kept in touch with the leaders who shared that evening with us. One of them, Mimi Pierre-Johnson has told me of the immediate need of her Haitian community in Elmont. They want a community center where they can gather and provide services for the community, and not just the Haitian community, but anyone in Elmont. After months of searching, Mimi has found a venue that would be perfect, but she needs to raise $250,000 to have rent and operating expenses for at least a year.

Would you become an ally of the Haitian community in Elmont by making donation of any amount to help make this big dream come true? The GoFundMe site for the project is <https://www.gofundme.com/3szrup-community-center-building>

I would also like to see us, as a community of faith, do something together to support this fundraising. Please send me any ideas you might have or let me know if you’d like to be part of an effort to be an ally to the Haitian Community in Elmont.

A Visit to Sisters of St. Joseph and a Lesson in Sustainable Land Management

A delegation of eight congregants traveled to Brentwood, NY on a blustery, cold Saturday in March to visit with the Sisters of St. Joseph. The Order with 400 members has become well known as a model of a faith-based community engaging in ethical land management that has reverence for all the wonders of creation. Rev. Ned Wight in his sermon on October 14, 2018, challenged UUCSR to emulate the Sisters who have undertaken many green projects on their 212-acre property.

Inspired by Rev. Ned's sermon, the delegation of congregants from the Building and Grounds and Green Sanctuary Committees met with Sister Karen Burke, Coordinator of Land Initiatives, and Sister Clara Santoro, Past President. Sister Karen passionately explained the Land Ethic statement, adopted by her faith-based community, which is a credo guiding all decisions regarding their land. The statement commits the Sisters "to preserve, protect, restore, and cherish the integrity, biodiversity, balance, and beauty of the land and all the species with whom we share it."

The achievements of the Sisters in environmentally sound land management have been very impressive. They have installed a complex of solar panels which supply 63 percent of the energy needs of their campus. With a grant from the Long Island Community Foundation, they have developed a rain garden which captures stormwater and allows it to infiltrate into a vegetative area. They have converted a large part of their lawn into a wildflower meadow which has been a haven for pollinators and other insects of all kinds. They have sold conservation easements to the County and State to preserve the open space on their property in perpetuity. Finally, the Sisters have obtained grants from Suffolk County and the Pritchard Foundation to replace their outmoded on-site sanitary waste disposal system with an innovative constructed wetland system.

The discussion with Sister Karen and the tour of the property was very inspirational for the eight congregants who attended, sparking ideas for how we can manage our property. Those who attended were: Jim and Elaine Peters, Kathy de Vos, Ellen Councill, Stephen Ruocco, Rebecca Smith, Jim Ansel, and Dana Gumb. Sister Karen and Sister Clara invited us to return later in the year when all the vegetation on their beautiful campus will be in full splendor.

A Wildflower Garden for Earth Day

On Friday, March 8, landscape ecologist Rusty Schmidt and his research assistant Ashley Crespo visited the UUCSR campus to talk about the designing of a wildflower garden. Rusty has been working with David Jakim from REWILD.

This is an organization that has been planting areas throughout the Town of North Hempstead through another branch organization called the Port Washington Monarch Alliance. They are dedicated to planting native wildflower gardens across Long Island.

Wildflowers are everywhere we allow them. They are not only beautiful and colorful to humans, but also those that are native to Long Island are food and habitat for birds and bugs (which themselves are food for birds and other animals). All contribute to make a healthy soil and ecosystem. Long Island's native wildflowers include an amazing array of larger trees and shrubs, such as black cherry and northern bayberry, as well as golden rod and golden aster plus grasses such as big and little bluestem and switch grass.

These aforementioned plants can have deep roots which help to hold and fertilize the soil and clean the water. This is, of course, crucial at UUCSR since our church sits atop the drinking water for the Great Neck Water District. One of the most famous native plants is milkweed which not only has long roots but is the only plant that monarch butterfly larva can feed on as they grow.

What the Green Sanctuary Committee and Building and Grounds Committee would like to do is plant a wildflower garden on our premises. It would be small and pretty and easily accessible. We have the space and our walk through with David and Rusty helped us find the right area and design for this project. What a great gift to celebrate Earth Day if we begin this year. We hope you support our plans to enhance and green UUCSR more than ever before. Of course, these kinds of gardens can also be planted at your home. They can not only beautify a monotonous suburban landscape, but also greatly benefit our diminishing good insect population and help the soil and water in this time of climate disturbance. Therefore, let's begin here at UUCSR to provide shelter for some of the nonhuman members of our community. A great gift for Earth Day 2019!

HADLEY HOUSE

Hadley House Residents' Association

Hadley House Alive!

"Hadley House is so alive!" exclaimed Hadley House resident Arline Senft. Rick Van Dyke, also a HH resident, agreed wholeheartedly. "In our communal living experience, sharing with one another, we have become more caring, more genuine among our neighbors," he added. "Our culture is a true example of the interdependent web in practice and a credit to the Congregation." In giving to one another, we are all enriched. The whole is greater than its parts.

We are very grateful to call Hadley House HOME: a home like no other; a warm, welcoming, generous community of UUs. Though we vary widely in age, it goes unnoticed in our relationships with one another. Some say that spirit, active life style and vibrancy of our programs contribute to longevity. Individuals here are inspired to give back to the community, depending on each one's interest, whether teaching or serving on committees, singing in the choir, handling leadership roles, etc.—whatever appeals, or nothing at all, if so desired.

Our building has a view of Manhasset Bay, and is a short walk to the Town Dock. What beautiful sunsets! Now that spring has come and the trials and tribulations of this past winter are behind us, our programs for the spring are beginning to take shape. Our new kitchen is reopening. The repair work to the flood-damaged areas of the building nears completion. The LLC should be in place by May. Some residents are talking about hosting an open house in the fall to which you will be invited. Hadley House is strong and open to the future.

When you "come of age," we invite you to join us here as a resident. Do plan ahead, as the wait list is long. If you are at least 62 and have been a member in good standing in a UU congregation for two years, you qualify. No commitment is necessary until you are offered an apartment. It is easy to do. Come by and make an appointment with Susan Bagnini, our social worker (516.944.8547), who will gladly provide a tour and discuss the process further with you. If you do decide to join us, you will be warmly welcomed.

MEMBERSHIP COMMITTEE

Ben Bortin, Membership and Volunteer Coordinator

These words are from Amy Singh, who, happily for us, joined this congregation on February 24 of this year.

"I'm originally from Massapequa, but recently moved from Astoria to Sea Cliff with my husband, James, and our five-year-old, Meadow. Our family is multi-religious. My husband grew up Sikh and I grew up Catholic. I've been searching for a liberal faith that supports and welcomes our family and I feel as though I've found that in UUCSR.

"I enjoy spending time with my family, and our beloved dog. I'm an educator and also love time spent with nature." I look forward to becoming involved with the congregation and its social justice program, and hope to continue to work in Trans and Gender non-conforming advocacy. I'm also always seeking a spiritual path and self-development."

THANK YOU

To UUCSR ministers, congregants, and friends,

No matter what you think, or that you expect the passing of a loved one, no matter the age or medical circumstances, the loss is always a painful shock. My sister, Lucille Juliano Abelman, led a long life. She was a loving, caring person and much loved. It is still painful for me and a shock. The caring messages from our wonderful ministers and members help deal with it. The messages of sympathy are comforting, and I thank you all.

My love, Ann Juliano Jawin

I want to formally express UUSC's thanks for Shelter Rock's collection in the amount of $1,504. I really appreciate that individuals in the congregation wanted to support our work, uplifting community-led human rights projects around the world. I also hope that members received the gratitude we feel for the congregation's tremendous support. Sending love to all.

Small Great Things

We have another novel in stock at our UUCSR Bookstore: Small Great Things by Jodi Picoult. Although it is an imaginary tale, the issues in it are real. Jodi Picoult is a talented author who has written 25 books and has long wanted to write about racism. However, being white and privileged, she felt she could not know or describe what it is like growing up black. She solved her creative dilemma by writing to her own community—white people, who can easily point to a neo-Nazi skinhead and say he is a racist but don't recognize their own prejudices. Picoult is skilled at contrasting different points of view and her sharply-honed writing ability produces a book that moves quickly and is a bit of a page-turner.

The story is told from three points of view: Ruth's, Turk's, and Kennedy's. Ruth is an experienced black nurse in an infant pediatric ward. She is ordered not to touch a baby whose parents, Turk and Brittany Bauer, are white supremacists. They demand that Ruth not be allowed to care for their son. The next day when she is alone on the ward and the baby goes into cardiac arrest, she makes the difficult decision to intervene and performs CPR. When the baby dies, the grieving and angry parents believe Ruth is at fault and she is charged with its death. Kennedy McQuarrie, a white woman, is the public defender and must defend Ruth of these serious charges. Picoult uses the lawyer to represent someone like herself, a well-educated liberal who struggles with her own denial and unawareness of latent racism. Ruth, in turn, becomes aware of the many small aggressions she tried so hard to repress: the woman who moves her purse when she comes near, the patient who thinks she is part of the cleaning staff, the acquaintance who questions her son's school success. Turk's loathsome beliefs are explored and explained in terms of his background and his trauma; the author manages to make him flawed but human.

This is soon to be a major motion picture starring Julia Roberts and Viola Davis.

"A novel that puts its finger on the very pulse of the nation that we live in today ... a fantastic read from beginning to end, as can always be expected from Picoult, this novel maintains a steady, page-turning pace that makes it hard for readers to put down."—San Francisco Book Review
