UPCOMING WORSHIP SERVICES

“Green Our Faith. Now.”
Green Sanctuary Committee & Fletcher Harper, Episcopal Priest

Climate change and environmental degradation are accelerating, and the current administration and Congress are exacerbating a genuine crisis. It’s time for faith groups to do what we do best – build local power and create transformative leadership - on behalf of the Earth, our common home. In this sermon, we’ll imagine a future in which spiritual communities, in the US and globally, embody the change that’s desperately needed, and we’ll be invited, and challenged, to act. A special collection will benefit GreenFaith, an international interfaith environmental organization.

“The Good Earth”
Oscar Sinclair, Ministerial Intern

This week we will reflect back on the last two years of student ministry at UUCSR. What is it that allows a religious community to thrive? What does being part of this community ask of each of us individually and together?

Sunday, July 9, 2017 - 11:00 AM
“How Deadly Were the Seven Deadly Sins?”
Ben Bortin, Membership & Volunteer Coordinator

Seven infamous vices were first identified by the early “desert fathers” of the third century of the Common Era, and have been part of our religious lore and literature ever since. But how horrific are these behaviors? With this exploration, a brief, sweeping look at the seemingly limitless capacity of human beings for evil, and how such deep-seated tendencies might be prevented and transcended.

TOUCHSTONES
Oscar Sinclair, Ministerial Intern

This is my last newsletter at UUCSR.

In my previous column, I noted that my contract here at UUCSR as your ministerial intern concludes on June 30. One of the final tasks of a ministerial internship is departing a congregation with intention and (we hope) some grace.

Along with members of the congregation and ministry team of UUCSR, I am traveling to New Orleans next week to attend the Unitarian Universalist Association’s annual General Assembly. I will be in the office for the last week of June, and will preach my final sermon here on Sunday, July 2.

It is important that once I leave on July 2, I will have little contact with UUCSR for several years. This is best practice in our association, and is in part to allow you to fully appreciate and develop a relationship with my successor as student minister.

I am also happy to write that last Sunday the Unitarian Church of Lincoln called me to be their next settled minister. Stacie and I will move out to Nebraska next month, and I will start there on August 1. The congregation in Lincoln is in an exciting place, thinking about who and how it wants to be in the next decade. Lincoln itself is both a college town and a state capital, so there are significant cultural opportunities outside of work.

I leaned heavily on the lessons I have learned here at Shelter Rock during my visits to Lincoln. Many of the projects that they are starting up are things that I have seen done well here. The last two years have been a remarkable learning experience. Thank you all for being a part of it.

I will be in the office the last week of June, and my door will be open. Otherwise, I will see you on July 2! Thanks for everything.
Veatch Board Approves $1,568,093 in Grants at the June Meeting

The Veatch Board of Governors (VBOG) gathered on June 6, 2017 for the final meeting of the fiscal year. Outgoing Chair Katie Kurjakovic welcomed everyone and shared opening reflections on her time on the Board and appreciation for the experience and the important work of the Veatch Program. The VBOG then turned their attention to the core business of the meeting: the review, discussion, and approval of 39 grants totaling $1,568,093.

A few highlights from this final round of grants include three new grantees:

Transgender Law Center (TLC) – one of the country’s most effective centers for impact litigation in support of transgender rights. Veatch Program support will help them to expand their use of legal services to build a base of constituents for their expanded organizing and advocacy campaigns.

Nebraska Appleseed – a community-based organization working with low-wage Latino workers in the dangerous meatpacking industry.

The Center for Innovation in Worker Organizing – a training center helping low-wage worker organizations create more effective campaigns, expand their membership base, and increase their fundraising success.

Other exciting renewal grants include:

Interfaith Organizing Initiative (IOI) – to help encourage denominations and organizing networks to continue collaborative work on police accountability and police reform.

Oakland Rising (OR) – a coalition of nine community organizing groups advancing progressive issues in the Bay Area.

The New York State Civic Engagement Table – a coalition of organizations working to increase the capacity of, and improve coordination between, organizations working in low-income communities and communities of color across New York state.

Solidaire Rapid Response Portal – a special one-time project grant to current grantee Solidaire to support the development of the Rapid Response Portal. This project will help Veatch Program grantees have access to new funders and expand the resources available for social change.

The VBOG was also excited to welcome visitor and new FY 18 VBOG member, Corrine Hayden. We also said a huge THANK YOU and bid a fond farewell to outgoing governors Katie Kurjakovic and Mark Hartman.

Midnight Run is a great opportunity to provide direct community service to those that are affected by homelessness and hunger in New York City. We are currently collecting clothing and toiletry donations. On the evening of July 7, we will prepare food, sort clothing and compile toiletry kits for distribution later that night.

In order to serve those in need, we are asking for donations of male adult clothing (rain jackets, long pants, shorts, socks, underwear, short sleeve shirts, long sleeve shirts, hats, shoes and tote bags) and Toiletries (soap, shampoo, lotion, deodorant, razors, shaving cream, toothbrushes, toothpaste, feminine hygiene products, combs and brushes). We will be collecting these donations in a bin in the Main Lobby until the day of the run. If you're interested in volunteering on July 7, please contact iharris@uucsr.org.

REMINDER: Worship to remain at 11:00 AM all summer.

Based on congregational feedback, the Worship Committee and the Ministry Team have decided to retain the 11:00 AM start time for worship throughout the summer of 2017. Worship Services in July and August will begin at 11:00 AM.

Worship Training
Thursday, June 29, 2017

On Thursday night, June 29, 7:00 – 9:30 PM, the Worship Committee and the Ministry Team will present a training workshop for persons in the congregation interested in assisting with worship leadership over the summer and into the fall. The workshop will take place in the Worship Room, and will cover the intent and structure of worship, ways to support guest preachers and the smooth flow of the service, how to create a climate of welcome in worship, and effectively using your voice and the sound system. To register for this program, please contact Worship Committee Liaison Lea Titza (ltitza@uucsr.org). Questions about this workshop may be directed to the Rev. Ned Wight (nwight@uucsr.org or 516.472.2916).

“Share Your Story: COM Conversations”
Wednesday, July 12 and Sunday, August 13, 2017

The Committee on Ministry (COM) and the Ministry Team have planned two “COM Conversations” this summer for members and friends of the congregation to share their stories of being part of the UUCSR community and talk about making our congregation the kind of community we aspire for it to be. These sessions will take place in Room 6 of the Religious Education wing—a welcoming space where participants can freely share thoughts, feelings and suggestions. The first evening, Wednesday, July 12, 7:30 – 9:30 PM, will focus on “How We Want to Treat One Another at UUCSR?” The focus for the August meeting (scheduled for Sunday, August 13, 12:30 – 2:00 PM) will be determined at the July gathering. All are welcome. Questions may be directed to Amit Sur (amit.sur@gmail.com) or to the Rev. Ned Wight (nwight@uucsr.org).

Transportation Assistance
UUCSR offers transportation assistance to Sunday Worship and Soulful Sundown services for members who are unable to travel due to physical or financial services. Contact Kimberly Rossiter, Assistant to the Ministers, at krossiter@uucsr.org or 516.472.2941 for an application.

VEATCH HOUSE PARKING NOTICE

During this period, the entire parking lot will be closed with no accessibility. In addition, the main roadway will be closed at 4:00PM on Saturday July 8. All events will end by 3:30 PM with the expectation the building will close at 4:00 PM. The Community Garden can be accessed through the Memorial Garden path.

The declining and dead Callery pear trees (Pyrus calleryana)

The UUCSR parking lots have become a sight for sore eyes for congregants and visitors alike. The trees in small island-like tree pits, surrounded by a sea of pavement, are in particularly bad shape. The stress of having critical root zones under pavement is not the only reason for the pear trees' distress though, since the ones with more lawn around them look to be in poor condition, as well.

There may be many factors that are adversely affecting the Callery pear trees. Some look like they may have been planted too deeply since the flare of the trunk where it meets the ground is not supposed to be visible. Soil up against the trunk of the tree can cause rot.

Another reason for the decline of the trees may be a fungus appearing in Long Island landscape pear trees called “Pear Trellis Rust.” The fungus causes unsightly leaf spots, premature defoliation and other physiological stress. Once the leaf spots appear there is not much to be done, according to a bulletin of the Bartlett Tree Experts. And once one specimen gets the fungus, it spreads to others of the same species nearby.

The fundamental mistake in our parking lot's urban forest is the planting of just one species, creating a monoculture. Botanically that amounts to putting all your eggs in one basket. When disaster hits one tree, the calamity tends to spread throughout the whole homogenous population. Just another example of strength in diversity. Certainly, we have learned our lesson that, when we replant the parking lot, we will plant a variety of species.

The UUCSR parking lot is not the only instance of the Callery pear tree being overplanted. When first brought to America from China by the US Department of Agriculture in 1960, the tree was thought to be the perfect urban tree. It was tolerant of urban conditions such as winter salting and compacted soil. People loved the abundant white flowers in spring and the beautiful purplish bronze hue to the leaves in the fall. Lady Bird Johnson planted one in downtown Washington, D.C. in 1966.

What was once so prized became an arborist's nightmare. The Callery pear trees, overplanted in housing developments, alongside streets and in parking lots like that at UUCSR, have shown their drawbacks. In addition to the fungus mentioned above, the branches tend to not be securely attached to the trunk, and the resulting weak crotches means that branches can easily break off. Again, the lesson learned is don't put all your botanical eggs in one basket. Diversity has the greatest resiliency.

SOCIAL JUSTICE COORDINATOR
Claire Deroche

Supporting our Sisters and Brothers in the Struggle

Over the last two weeks I had the opportunity to gather with members of two very important local organizations: ERASE Racism and the Islamic Center of Long Island (ICLI).

On Wednesday, June 7, along with Lisa Simon, outgoing chair of the Social Justice Committee and Robin Finnan-Jones, incoming chair, I attended the Annual Benefit Reception of ERASE Racism. Over three hundred supporters of this vital organization gathered at the Garden City Hotel. Of course, the surroundings were beautiful, the food was delicious, and the company was engaging. Elaine Gross, Executive Director of ERASE Racism, and the Board of Directors had chosen a slate of stellar awardees: Rev. Dr. Calvin O. Butts, III and Frederick K. Brewington, Esq. for their visionary civil rights work; Amy Maiello Hagedorn (posthumously) for her passionate funding of and fighting for justice and equity causes; and the Islamic Center of Long Island for its leadership in advocating for interfaith harmony and social justice. In lieu of traditional speeches, Rev. Butts and Mr. Brewington engaged in a conversation portraying how Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and Malcolm X might comment on the social and political climate of 2017 were they alive today. Ms. Gross rounded out the evening with a presentation on some of the recent efforts of ERASE Racism, especially in the area of equity in education. The organization has produced an infographic on the lamentable state of education on Long Island, where today dramatically more black and Hispanic students attend segregated schools than 12 years ago! This publication will be a useful tool in efforts to do anti-racism education in our communities.

On Wednesday, June 14, I joined 8 members of UUCSR for the 14th Annual Interfaith Iftar at the Islamic Center of Long Island. Each day during the month of Ramadan, when Muslims fast from sun rise to sun set, they gather at night to break the fast together at the Iftar. During this holy month, the members of ICLI invite friends and neighbors from the local community to join them in breaking the fast. To participate in this event is to witness the genius of the leadership of ICLI. As a minority religious community in a society that is often hostile to them, the Islamic Center of LI has found a way to become a valued member of the larger community. They have done this by carefully cultivating friendships in their neighborhood, with other religious communities and faith leaders, with local elected officials, and the local police. This was all evident as President Isma Chaudhry recognized representatives of these groups, called some to the podium so that they could share their insights, and generally made us feel that we were doing them a kindness by accepting their hospitality.

As I reflected on these events, it occurred to me that maybe the prescription for spreading the name of the Unitarian Universalist Congregation at Shelter Rock in the local community is a larger dose of our members’ participation in the events of other organizations that share our values. I know that I will be on the look-out for opportunities for the Social Justice Committee to do more of that!

On Friday, June 23 at 6:30 PM in the Worship Room you can join members of the Social Justice Committee for the monthly vigil to end solitary confinement. This will be followed by a film in the Art Gallery on the prison at Guantanamo. This June let’s each do something to stop our nation’s use of torture.

MENTAL HEALTH SUBCOMMITTEE OF THE SOCIAL JUSTICE COMMITTEE

Myth:

People with mental health needs, even those who are managing their mental illness, cannot tolerate the stress of holding down a job.

Reality:

People with mental health problems are just as productive as other employees. Employers who hire people with mental health problems report good attendance and punctuality as well as motivation, good work, and job tenure on par with or greater than other employees.

When employees with mental health problems receive effective treatment, it can result in:

• Lower total medical costs
• Increased productivity
• Lower absenteeism
• Decreased disability costs

The Lemon Tree by Sandy Tolan is a poignant work of non-fiction about a young Jewish woman living in a house given to her family by the Israeli government years ago when they first arrived under the “Right of Return” laws. They’d been told it had been abandoned by Palestinians in 1947. However, one day she learns the truth...a young Palestinian and his cousins visit and she learns that the IDF had driven the former owners out and seized the property. The shock of their story, proven true, makes her question if she alone has the right to live there. What happens next is, as Big, Bad Bob Nuxoll commented, a beautiful story of non-violent compromise.

35 people joined this congregation this past year, and we heartily welcome them all. I have the privilege of interviewing many of them, and I feel we are all the more fortunate, knowing such discerning, stimulating, often creative, friendly people are adding themselves to our midst. Here are introductions of four.

Grazia Rosenberg
Born in a town near Venice, Italy, Grazia was raised a strict Roman Catholic. She commented that “an Italian takes religion very seriously; it affects how one behaves, how one forms relationships, and how one thinks.” She eventually found the super-conservatism of the church very constricting. (When a church official told her that birth control was “against nature,” she asked, isn’t taking aspirin also “against nature?”)

She said that it was not common for those who were not wealthy in her Italian community to obtain a college education. Her parents found their way to send Grazia to college, and she later came to the United States on a Fulbright. Here she felt a sense of freedom which she compared to “the Red Sea’s parting.”

Gary Mitchell
Also raised Roman Catholic, Gary had a great grandmother who attended mass every day. When he began asking about certain dogmas, he was told not to ask. Veering toward an agnostic humanist point of view, Gary also had a phase of Tendai Buddhism. A few years ago, his children began attending the RE program at UUCSR. He couldn't help but notice how much they enjoyed their experience; He himself appreciates as well the non-creedal approach to religion that Unitarian Universalism offers, embraces the values on which it is founded, and appreciates the atmosphere of acceptance for people’s individual spiritual journeys.

Gary has lived in a variety of places. He grew up in Poughkeepsie, moved to Canada, went to school in Boston, and was an undergraduate in Plattsburgh, NY. He led a knock-out workshop at Silver Bay this spring, on theatrical improvisation. He teaches drama at Hofstra, on top of other career involvements.

Anthony Bustamante
Anthony and his family began attending UUCSR a little over a year ago, and joined in the fall of 2016. He grew up in Astoria, and was an altar boy and then confirmed in the Catholic church. His religious doubts began in his teen years. They were reenforced when he joined the service, and met people of various backgrounds and persuasions.

Fortunately, he survived a scary mission during the first Gulf War. He met Amy, and together, they attended UU services in Brooklyn. Four years ago, they were married in the UU congregation in Flushing. In spite of the sense of great size of the building, they were favorably impressed with the hospitable reception they have received at UUCSR, as well as its message of acceptance, joy, and hope.

Tops on Anthony’s list of passions is his daughter Arya. He also enjoys softball, baseball, and football. A warm welcome to him.

Amy Bustamante
Amy grew up in Williston Park, Long Island, and later spent ten years in Brooklyn, where she met her husband-to-be, Anthony. She grew up Catholic, but later began her own religious exploration. She derives inspiration from natural beauty. She began sporadically to attend UU congregations.

Amy is interested in Tango, among other kinds of dance. She also has pursued yoga. She is most passionate about being a mother and wife. She is well travelled, having been, among other places, to Machu Picchu and the Galapagos. She works in the leadership of a Japanese bank.

As the solstice passes, a rewarding start to summer to you all.

WOMEN’S GROUP
Maria Ceraulo, Chair, Women’s Issues

Welcome Back, Wonder Woman

As I told some friends the other evening, it was Wonder Woman who helped begin my 32-year career in Special Education. As a new Substitute in a class of emotionally disturbed children, I was terrified. I was returning to work after my children were born, unintentionally wearing my hair in a bun like the actress on the television show: Wonder Woman. As we were heading to class, the children smiled and called me: Wonder Woman. As they say, I was hooked and the rest is history.

She came back in the current movie that was directed by a woman: Patty Jenkins. At a time when 81% of characters in films are male and women fill only one third, it made me proud. She’s not a super hero that rescues the helpless women, but she’s a woman whose mission is to bring peace to the world.

She does have special powers. She can deflect bullets, find the truth with her Lasso of Truth, and has super-human strength. She’s beautiful, strong and has a hard time understanding why people still need to fight. People continue to talk about her sword as she wore it tucked in the back of her gown -- a possible fashion statement?

A role model can inspire little girls and remind all of us of our inner strength. It can renew our resolve to confront the systematic loss of our rights with efforts to counter them. We can be inspired by the women from more than 40 countries who urged our President to defuse military tensions and negotiate peace on the Korean Peninsula. No special powers were at work when the wives of human rights lawyers who were detained in China in 2015 resisted with online appeals, visits to jails, prosecutors and courts. They carried red buckets and displayed a red slogan: “Leave the dressing table and take on the slugs”.

In Morocco, women demanded equal rights of land ownership with men. They are protesting two times a week.

One wonders whether we need special powers to overcome the many challenges women face. Let’s take our power and resolve to address the health care bill’s insults to women, the aging and disabled. Let’s be a force that effects change by working to get the ERA passed in this country. Let’s reduce violence against women, combat sex trafficking and advance women’s rights.

Bring the little girls in your life to see the movie and enjoy a super hero that is a woman. Let them see that they can be strong, beautiful and take care of themselves. The Amazons were about love and peace. Although they were physically strong, Wonder Woman says that fighting doesn’t make you a hero. Fight for those who can’t fight for themselves. Celebrate Wonder Woman’s mission and renew your own commitment to advance women’s rights.
The Chamber of Commerce’s Real Interests

The Chamber of Commerce is an organization designed to protect small business interests which can include their environmental needs. However, in recent years, it has put forward an agenda that promotes profits over people by supporting corporate rights and executives no matter what public wrong they commit. Therefore, environmental protections that are warranted are being fought against. The victims of corporate wrongdoing are not being supported by the Chamber, but are being denied the right to sue those companies that injure them. As a result, many unconscionable and notorious lawsuits have resulted.

“Profits Before People: U.S Chamber of Litigation” from PublicCitizen News*

In a groundbreaking report, Public Citizen’s U.S. Chamber Watch program recently examined a few dozen of the most egregious cases the Chamber has litigated in the past few years and took a deep dive into the anti-public interest litigation choices of the Chamber.

The Chamber is the country’s largest business lobby, spending $104 million on federal lobbying and $30 million on congressional elections just last year, all while pretending to be a voice for small business when in actuality it represents the interests of giant corporations.

One way the Chamber advances the corporate agenda is in the courts. For example, the Chamber supported British Petroleum four times in litigation related to the Deepwater Horizon oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico. In one of those cases, the Chamber sided with the British oil giant over thousands of American small businesses harmed by the disaster.

The Chamber also sided with the Canadian energy giant behind the Keystone XL pipeline over American ranchers and farmers who didn’t want the pipeline routed through their land.

And the Chamber fought to strike down municipal zoning ordinances to prevent fracking and sued the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to block the Clean Power Plan, President Barack Obama’s signature initiative to reduce greenhouse gas emissions at power plants.

“Time and again, the Chamber has opposed any and all means of holding corporations and their executives accountable for wrongdoing,” said Dan Dudis, director of Public Citizen’s Chamber Watch program. “Whether trying to make it more difficult for consumers and small businesses harmed by corporate malfeasance to go to court, or arguing for more limited corporate prosecutions, the Chamber’s ultimate goal is to minimize or eliminate corporate accountability for wrongdoing. We are highlighting this to make people aware that the Chamber is not the benevolent small business it claims to be.”

What is evident is that the Chamber of Commerce’s litigation is at odds with its initial mission. To date, it has fought against environmental protections asked for workers, consumers, and small businesses. What they support is the Big Guy over the little guy. It is in the public’s interest to continue to fight them in courts so we can stop their harm and malfeasance.
